Project Summary: An update to the Inyo County General Plan is proposed to address renewable solar and wind energy development. A Land Use Designation Overlay is proposed in which solar and wind renewable energy projects may be developed, based on site specific studies and permitting pursuant to the County's Renewable Energy Ordinance and other applicable State, federal, and local laws. Other updates proposed include the following: identifying appropriate means to develop renewable wind and solar energy resources, provided that social, economic, and environmental impacts are minimized; offsetting costs to the County and lost economic development potential, and mitigation of economic effects; working to protect military readiness, and; considering conversions of lands utilized for agriculture, mining, and recreation.
